Howard Contest's Woodford's Seat.

Judge H. Clay Howard, the defeated candidate for the State Legislature in this county, has served notice of contest upon his successful Democratic opponent, the Hon. J. Hal Woodford. This is but a sample of what is going on by this G. O. P. (Greedy, Old Party) throughout the State. Not satisfied by the great victory won, but jumps at every little thing where they imagine they can put a Democrat out who has won his fight against them. The allegations set forth in the contest notice embrace a general charge of fraud, repeating and corruption at all of the twenty polling places in the county. The opening paragraph of the notice alleges that the contestee having refused to enter into an agreement with the contestant not to use any money, whisky or other things of value to influence a voter or to control the result of said election, did in person and through others use large sums of money and other unlawful means for corrupting voters; that partisan supporters and paid workers of the contestee declared their purpose to carry said election "if they had to buy it—they just meant to take it, if they had to steal it." The notice recites the usual allegations of fraud. It is but a waste of time of these Bourbon Republicans for as sure as the sun shines, just so sure will the Hon. J. Hal Woodford represent old Bourbon county in the next Legislature.

Roosevelt vs. Field.

Leaders in New York politics believe now that it will be Roosevelt against the field, and they profess to think that the President will accept a third term, having started their press bureaus to combat such a movement. It is said that the President will be forced to speak out once more on the question of a third term.

Bourbon Circuit Court.

The November term of the Bourbon Circuit Court was convened in this city yesterday morning. Judge R. L. Stout was unavoidably late and did not call the Court to order before half past ten o'clock.

After the orders being read by Clerk Butler, Judge Stout instructed the Sheriff to empanel the grand jury, and the following gentlemen were put in the box and sworn in: Foreman, Wm. Layson; Lee Beall, Frank Isrigig, Frank Clay, Jr., H. J. Santon, D. T. Wilson, B. F. Hopkins, Robt. Meter, John Arkle, G. M. McKimsey, W. A. Morris.

Judge Stout's instructions were short. He said: "I shall not detain you gentlemen or suffer myself to be detained from the bedside of a very ill mother. In fact the general good condition of matters in Bourbon county and in the city of Paris are in excellent shape, so I am informed by the officers. Take up the jail cases first, and then the parties who are out on bond. In fact there is nothing to call your attention to especially, only keep up the good standard that is now existing in this community."

The Judge then had an order entered appointing Mr. Chas. A. McMillan Acting Commonwealth's Attorney in the absence of Mr. Robert B. Franklin, who is engaged in the Powers case at Georgetown.

The officers of the county were then called to make their report in the presence of the Grand Jury. Only three of them reported funds in their hands, County Clerk Paton reported $97; Judge Dundon, $117.42, and Squire Thomason, of Millersburg, $71.23.

The grand jury was then instructed to retire to their room.

Judge Stout then adjourned court until this morning at 10 o'clock, and returned to Versailles on first interurban car, where his mother, Mrs. Fannie Stout, is lying critically ill at Versailles Hospital. Judge Stout informed us that his mother was run down by two boys on bicycles at Versailles about two months ago, receiving a fracture of her hip bone, but had been getting along nicely since the accident. That on Sunday she became suddenly worse, and was in very serious condition all during the night. That her condition was critical but that she had hopes of her being better on his return.

If Mrs. Stout is better this morning Judge Stout will return, if not a special Judge will have to be appointed by Governor Beckham to take his place on the bench here. However, Judge Stout and the Paris bar will have a consultation before the appointment of a special Judge is asked for. We trust that the good mother of Judge Stout will be much better this morning and that he may return to us with good news from her bedside, that his anxiety may cease.

Fined $25 and Trimmings.

Sid Winkler, of North Middletown, was yesterday fined $25 and costs in Judge Dundon's Court for using insulting and abusive language to a Mrs. Webster of the same town.

The case was appealed to the Circuit Court immediately after the trial. Sidney seems to be a bad man from "medicine creek," as this is the third case of the same nature now pending against him in Circuit Court. Wonder if he could be one of Roosevelt's "undesirable citizens?"

"Doors" That Open.

The Sioux City (Ia.) Journal was visited recently by a disastrous fire. Other newspaper publishers rushed to the aid of their distressed neighbor and their plants were offered in order that the Journal might appear regularly. Everywhere the keenest sympathy was shown and everybody—friend and foe—tried to lend a hand.

That is an American characteristic—and thank God for it—in time of trouble.

In concluding an editorial relating to the fire Mr. Perkins, the veteran editor of the Journal says: "If the editor of the Journal may be excused he will indulge in a more personal word. He is now in the thirty-ninth year of his Sioux City life and work. All these years have been passed in the company of the Journal. The retrospect is filled with the faces of friends—many present and many gone. He has many times had occasion to acknowledge his debt to these friends, and he gladly renews acknowledgement now. The fire dipped into things material and it lit up things which are as the stars in heaven. If the time shall come when a neighbor is in like stress he knows he would throw open his doors as the doors of these neighbors have been thrown open to him. With this assurance he thanks them each and all—those who have buildings and plants, and those who have only the doors of their hearts. There is nothing so bad as it might be, and it is wondrous good that compensation comes quickly to the place of trouble. It is a delight to affirm this in the midst of water-soaked stuff and roofless home."

That is a large contribution to the music of the world. To be in duty bound to say it, and to be able to say it, and to feel it—and for the world to hear and appreciate it—is worth, almost, several fires.

Energy and enterprise "in the midst of water-soaked stuff and a roofless home" is an American characteristic and to this fact is due, in part, the great progress our country has made. But the remedy opening of doors by "those who have buildings and plants and those who have only the doors of their hearts" that—in the hour of a neighbor's tribulation—is also an American characteristic.

"Faith, hope and love!" And the last—that mighty power that throws open the doors of men's hearts—the last is by no means the least.

A Stalwart Kept Guessing.

President Roosevelt has evidently befogged the usually clear brain of former United States Senator Spooner, for he said when asked whether Mr. Roosevelt will be a candidate for President again? "God alone knows. He has said he won't be a candidate. He has said he will be a candidate. He is impulsive. He is erratic. He is honest in his desires, but the man does not live who can say whether he will run again or not. That's it. Teddy, keep the rascals guessing."

The Nigger in the Woodpile.

There is a deal of whispering in Washington about the Preciado case. The point of interest consists in the contradictory positions taken by the President and the State Department in regard to the Brownsville affair in August, 1906. Preciado was a citizen of Mexico living in Brownsville, and claims to have been wounded in the hand by soldiers of the United States in the riot at Brownsville; and therefore, demands $10,000 damages from our Government. The State Department denies that American soldiers did the injury with the knowledge or consent of their officers, or after the officers had such notice of impending trouble as to put them on their guard and oblige them to take precautionary measures. Preciado replies that this position is contrary to the declarations of the President of the United States, and the testimony on the subject. In other words Preciado takes the Roosevelt view of the riot, while the State Department insists on the Foraker view. It is a pretty case.

It takes more than sentiment to make a saint.

A good hoe is a first-class prayer against weeds.

Government By Injunction.

Judge M. J. Moss, of Bell county, Ky., has issued an injunction in the Coleman Mining company case against Wash Spicer and other, which illustrates the extent to which the injunction can be carried. Spicer and several others whose names are given are enjoined and restrained from interfering, meddling, advising, counseling any person from working in the mines of the Coleman Mining company, either by intimidation or force or any other interference or meddling with any person engaged or offering to engage in work in said mines, and by paying said persons to desist from work in said mines, by furnishing them food and rations for so desisting and that they be enjoined from giving it out and causing it to be printed in the papers or otherwise, that any miners are locked out of said mines, for ten days from this date.

It will be noticed that they are enjoined from meddling or advising. They are also enjoined from furnishing food and rations, from desisting from work and from giving out and causing it to be printed in the papers or otherwise that any miners are locked out of said mines. Is there any state in the union where a statute forbids the giving of food to a person as a means of influencing him? The judge in the above case assumed the right to declare unlawful a thing which has not been declared unlawful by statute, and having made this law, he proceeds to enforce it and then sits in judgment at the trial of the case, thus combining the legislative, the executive and the judicial powers in one. But bad as this is, it is made worse by the fact that a jury trial is denied to the one charged with belittling this judge-made law. The contempt, if there is any contempt, is of course committed outside of the presence of the court and must be established by proof. Instead of allowing a jury to weigh the evidence and determine the guilt of the one charged with contempt, and judge acts as both judge and jury. It is strange that the laboring men should ask for legislation that will protect them in their right to call for a jury. It is not strange rather that the public is so slow to recognize the justice of the laboring man's request and the danger that lurks in the system of government by injunction?

Same Way Here.

Prices are higher in France, as they are here, and from the same causes. A dispatch from Paris, deploring the excessive cost of living, attributes it to "protectionism, militarism, improvidence and wasteful public expenditures. Strikes, unionism, and bad legislation rushed through with feather head levity." Same here.

Cleveland and Roosevelt.

At last Grover Cleveland can join the ranks of those politicians from whom Mr. Roosevelt has borrowed his policies. The President has followed Cleveland's policy of issuing bonds to replenish the supply of gold in the treasury. There is this difference, however, that Cleveland was forced to act by conditions brought about by his predecessor, while Roosevelt's act has been made necessary by conditions produced by Republican policies.

The Disease and the Remedy.

Already a number of industrial plants have been forced to shut down, says a dispatch from Wall street, owing to the money conditions, which means that these conditions are working their own cure. Such is the consolation of the Wall Street gamblers. Thousands of men are without employment. Prices of wheat and cotton have declined. And this is hailed as a godsend and a cure of hardtimes by the frenzied financiers who caused the panic.

Will Bear Watching.

As the ship-subsidy lobby is already gathering in Washington for another assault upon the Treasury, they must have confidence in the great majority of Republican Congressmen being in favor of that grafting proposition. Still one can hardly believe, that for the sake of their own political fortunes, many Representatives of the people will take chances of voting for the ship subsidy graft and expect the people to re-elect them.

QUESTIONS' and THE ANSWER.

By EDNA KERR.

Copyrighted, 1907, by P. C. Eastment.

Robert Henry Cuthbert Peabody climbed solemnly into the blue plush chair and surveyed the fast filling car. Down at the far end was a man with a red fez upon his head, and for the space of a full minute R. H. C. P. regarded this strange creature there; his shrill voice rose above the bustle of the incoming passengers.

"What's that man wearing a monkey hat for, Uncle Harry?" he demanded. Harry Blake scowled at his nephew and whispered that the man came from a country where all wore similar hats.

"Are they all monkeys?" loudly demanded the youngster. Half a dozen persons tittered, and the Turkish traveler rose and went forward to the smoker. Blake coaxed the boy to look out of the window and devoutly prayed that this occupation would hold his attention until their train should pull out and the roar of the wheels drown the incessant stream of questions.

He was more than ever glad of his strategy when Mabel Manley entered the car and took a seat diagonally across from them. It is unpleasant to be in the same parlor car with a young woman who but the night before declared matrimony to be out of the question and after having worn one's engagement ring for more than two months.

Blake, anticipating trouble, wondered if he would not be able to effect an exchange into another car, but the impossibility of leaving "Questions," which was R. H. C. P.'s shorter name, alone prevented the carrying out of that plan.

He was just congratulating himself that they would at least be under way before Questions made the discovery of Miss Manley's presence when the youngster turned his attention from the window and sank back into his seat.

"They're beating us," he wailed, pointing to a departing local train on an adjoining track. "They're starting first, and it ain't fair."

The tears began to flow at the treachery of the other train that dared to precede the one he honored with his patronage, but they quickly dried as Mabel instinctively started forward to comfort him, forgetting the scene of the night before.

"There's Miss Mabel!" cried the torment. "Why ain't you talking to her, Uncle Harry?"

"She doesn't want to be talked to," he whispered.

"But you're always talking to her," he insisted. "Why don't you do it now?"

"She wants to be alone," explained Blake, but Questions wriggled from his chair.

"She don't," contradicted the youth. "She's calling me."

He sprang across the aisle and into the girl's lap. For a moment he nestled against her shoulder, but it was the toll of a false peace.

"Are you mad at Uncle Harry?" he demanded.

"Hush, dear," whispered the blushing girl. "You mustn't ask such questions."

"But are you?" he insisted. "Why don't you want him to sit by you and hold your hand like you always do?"

"If you say such things I shall have to put you down," she admonished as several of the passengers began to laugh.

"But you do," persisted the little friend. "And you kiss him too! If you ain't mad, why don't you kiss him?"

Blake reached across the aisle and caught his nephew in a stern grip.

"You keep on talking and I'll spank you," he hissed through his half-clinched teeth. "Now, don't let me hear a word out of you."

"I only get spanked when I tell lies," defied Questions. "I wasn't telling lies. It's true; you do kiss her."

Blake caught his nephew's arm in a grip of steel and shook him roughly. Questions began to cry.

"You hurt!" he wailed. "I want mamma. I hate you." He rose in his wrath and began to pound Blake with his chubby fists. Within himself Blake swore fervently that never again would he chaperon a child, even to oblige the best sister that ever lived. Questions, tiring of his occupation, abandoned the pummeling and began to cry again. The train was in motion now and the roar of the movement filled the car, but Questions' wails rose superior to the noises. Mabel stood it as long as she could, then she crossed the aisle.

"If you will let me have the child, perhaps I could quiet him," she suggested. "Perhaps you would like to go forward to the smoker for a cigar?"

Blake flashed a grateful glance into the clear, brown eyes and relinquished his charge.

"There was no one else to bring him down, so I promised Nell that I would," he said. "I'm sorry he embarrassed you so, but I couldn't help it. There are some problems still too vast for his childish grasp—and mine, too," he added under his breath.

He had just settled himself comfortably for a smoke when the porter of his car came into the buffet, his face wreathed in smiles.

"The lady done say as to bow you was to come back," he reported. "That'll boy sho' enough want you."

With an exclamation Blake sprang to his feet, throwing away his cigar, and went back to his seat.

"I am sorry to have to send for you," said Mabel, "but Questions seemed to think that you had deserted him and he refused to be comforted."

"I hope that he will appreciate me, now that he has me back," said Blake, grinning as he took the boy into his arms.

"I'm sure that he will be good," she declared, with a smile. Blake regarded the small boy doubtfully and retreated to his seat. For a full five minutes Questions was quiet; then he began to sob afresh.

"What's it now?" asked Blake fearfully.

"I want Miss Mabel to hold my hand," he sobbed.

"She can't," said Blake, irritably. "You must be good, or I shall take you into the baggage car."

"I want Miss Mabel to hold my hand," reiterated Questions in a louder tone. Miss Manley crossed the aisle.

"Perhaps it will keep him quiet," she said as she sank into Questions' chair and took his chubby hand in her own slender fingers. "Poor little chap, he is not used to traveling without Nell."

"He'll never travel with me again," declared Blake viciously. "Nell thinks that his inquisitive mind is a sign of mental sharpness. I think it's an indication of idleness."

"You don't mean that," she cried reproachfully. "Questions is a dear, if he does make embarrassing demands."

"I couldn't tell him what the matter was when I did not know myself," began Blake. "You just gave me back the ring and told me it was all over."

"I was at the roof garden," she said, significantly.

"What difference does that make?" he asked. "I was there, too, but that should not call for such stern discipline."

"It was that party you were with," she explained. Blake's face cleared.

"Good Lord," he cried reproachfully. "You didn't suppose I was with that crowd, did you? Those seats at the tables are reserved, you know, and they had the other checks."

"That chemical blond had been dining too well, and she insisted upon regarding me as one of the party. It was easier to let her have her way than to take chances on a row with the whole crowd."

"I think I have wronged you," she said softly. "I am sorry, Harry, but it looked as though you were with the party. Then when I saw you in the restaurant later I sent back the ring. I supposed that you had seen me and were trying to prove an alibi."

He felt in his waistcoat pocket, and for a moment Mabel dropped Questions' hand while she let Blake slip the ring into place. Questions, sleepy after his display of temper, roused for a moment.

"It's all right," he murmured sleepily. "you're holding hands," and his eyelids closed again, while Blake whispered to himself, "It's all right, thank God," and smiled into the answering eyes of the girl.

The Ants' Egg Trade.

Ants' eggs come in the main from Russia. They are the best food obtainable for goldfish and canaries and other cage birds thrive on them wonderfully. They cost about 50 cents a pint. In the forests of southern Russia ant nests abound. The Russian egg hunter does not do his own collecting there. He makes the poor ants do it for him. Selecting a hot, sunny day, the first man erects little piles of twigs, a dozen or more of them, near the thickest colonies, and then he kicks open all the nests in the neighborhood. The ants know that their eggs, thus exposed to the sun, would be made sterile in a few hours, and they take them up and bury to place them under the nearest shelter. The nearest shelter is of course the little piles of twigs, and under each of these there are soon heaped the eggs from a hundred nests. The egg hunter after a smoke and a nap has nothing to do but gather up his spoil and dump it in his sack. He ships the eggs in hundredweight bags all over the world.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

All In Cold Storage.

An Oregon attorney, representing a client whose title to a certain cold storage plant was under fire, closed an able argument before the Oregon supreme court with the following bit of pathos: "Your honors, there is more resting upon your decision than this cold storage plant. A human life is at stake. My client's life's efforts are in this cold storage; his lifeblood is this cold storage; his body and soul are wrapped up in this cold storage."—La Notes.

David Rankin of Tarkio, Missouri's most extensive farmer, said the other day that he had made $12,000 this year that he knew of and had not "figured in" many items not yet settled up.

Henry J. Byer, a retired undertaker of Cleveland, provided in his will that his grandchildren must not smoke, chew or drink. He left $1,500 a year for painting the ironwork around his tomb.

Milton Pratt, the oldest voter in Great Barrington, is ninety years old and is employed in the iron business at a furnace on Mount Riga. He is probably the oldest living man who has refined iron.

In his ninety-third year Judge Charles Fields sits regularly in the First district court of northern Worcester, Mass., holding sometimes as many as five sessions a week in Athol and Gardner. He was seventy years old when appointed to the bench.

The Chicago Tribune asks this of the secretary of the treasury, "Will the excellent Mr. Cortelyou please change the cut of his hair, assume a different expression of countenance or sit at a different angle before the camera and thereby relieve the unvarying monotony of his portraits?"

Herr Maximilian Harden, the German editor who has been figuring so prominently in connection with exposures in upper German circles, has been in journalism twenty years. He at first wrote for various journals; but, not finding the freedom he desired, he established a paper of his own, Die Zukunft (the Future), in 1892.

INDUSTRIAL ITEMS.

The average weekly wage paid to female laborers of all classes in Germany is a little over $1.50 each.

Scottish bakers in 1888 only earned from 20 to 28 shillings a week. The average wages now stand at from 28 to 36 shillings a week.

Bangor, Me., is said to have the only moccasins sewers' union in the country. These workers make the various patterns of woodmen's and hunters' moccasins, "shoe paces," high and low cut, and other patterns for utility; also many fancy models of soft leathers for indoor use.

The agricultural college at Tokyo has been experimenting for some time past with "sasa," or bamboo grass, and the possibilities of making paper pulp from it. It is now reported that unexpected success has been met with, which is very important for Japan, considering the great abundance all over the empire of this bamboo grass.

TRAIN AND TRACK.

Nearly all railway stations in Germany are equipped with restaurants, and, as a rule, the restaurant is the only waiting room.

It is a rare sight on German railways, including the provincial branches, to see a freight train that does not have an oil tank with an American inscription.

Both the Alton and Burlington have restored their old schedule on the western run by cutting time. They lost business by lengthening the schedule to Kansas City and Denver.

The Pennsylvania railroad, noting the increasing scarcity of all varieties of lumber, has gone into the forestry business on a large scale. Within a short time it will have millions of trees under cultivation from which wood may be obtained for railroad ties.

TALES OF CITIES.

The city of Boston lost 21,000 towels at the public baths this year.

New York's new postmaster is giving a large portion of the residence section of that city an evening delivery of mail matter.

The first census of Italian residents of New Haven, Conn., shows that the city has about 27,000 residents of that nationality. Eighteen years ago there were only 2,000 Italians there. A ninth of all the taxpayers in the city are Italians.

Twenty years ago Buenos Ayres was a collection of mean buildings, with a population of some 40,000. Today it has a population of a million, with ten miles of docks, an electric street car system, banking system and buildings, public and private, equal to any city in the world.

COMMON SENSE

Leads most intelligent people to use only medicines of known composition. Therefore it is that Dr. Pierce's medicines, the makers of which print every ingredient entering into them upon the bottle wrappers and attest its correctness under oath, are daily growing in favor. The composition of Dr. Pierce's medicines is open to everybody. Dr. Pierce being desirous of having the search light of investigation turned fully upon his formulae, being confident that the better the composition of these medicines is known the more will their great curative merits be recognized. Being wholly made of the active medicinal principles extracted from native forest roots, by exact processes original with Dr. Pierce, and without the use of a drop of alcohol, triple-refined and chemically pure glycerine being used instead in extracting and preserving the curative virtues residing in the roots employed, these medicines are entirely free from the objection of doing harm by creating an appetite for either alcoholic beverages or habit-forming drugs. Examine the formula on their bottle wrappers—the same as sworn to by Dr. Pierce, and you will find that his "Golden Medical Discovery," the great blood-purifier, stomach tonic and bowel regulator—the medicine which, while not recommended to cure consumption in its advanced stages (no medicine will do that) yet does cure all those catarrhal conditions of head and throat, weak stomach, torpid liver and bronchial troubles, weak lungs and hang-on-coughs, which, if neglected or badly treated lead up to and finally terminate in consumption. Take the "Golden Medical Discovery" to time and it is not likely to disappoint you if only you give it a thorough and fair trial. Don't expect miracles. It won't do supernatural things. You must exercise your patience and persevere in its use for a reasonable length of time to get its full benefits. The ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed have the unqualified endorsement of scores of medical leaders—better than any amount of lay, or non-professional, testimonials. They are not given away to be experimented with but are sold by all dealers in medicines at reasonable prices.

With full official returns in from every county in the State, the plurality received by Augustus E. Willson for Governor of Kentucky at the recent election was 18,053 over Judge Hager. The returns show that Mr. Willson led his ticket by about 7,000 votes more than the balance of the ticket. Judge Hager, too, was defeated by the largest plurality of any of the Democratic candidates, John K. Hendrick, for Attorney General, losing by the minimum majority against Judge Breathitt's majority only reaching 12,207 votes.

State Wins Important Bank Cases

The Court of Appeals handed down a decision in the case of State Auditor S. W. Hager against the Citizens' National Bank, of Lebanon, and the First National Bank, of Lexington, in which it upheld the act of 1906. This decision is one of the most important handed down by the Appellate Court in years, as it affects every national bank in the State, holding, as it does, that the Government bonds owned by the national banks are subject to valuation and assessment by the State Board of Valuation and Assessment. The case was first tried in the State Fiscal Court and the act of 1906 declared unconstitutional, and was carried to the Court of Appeals by Auditor Hager. For years the Auditors of the State of Kentucky have sought to collect taxes on the Government bonds owned by the national banks, but the decision of the court Friday is the first on record in favor of the contention of the State. The First National Bank of Paris has now a suit pending against the city of Paris along same issues, in which this decision practically does away with it. The decision of the court is in part as follows:

"The fiscal year for 1906 did not expire until June 30, 1906, and clearly the Board of Valuation and Assessment had the power at any time within the fiscal year to make an assessment for that year.

"The law under which the assessments were made was in every substantial particular identical with the preceding law of 1904. If the assessment had been made under the law which they were assessed. The argument that if its shares had been assessed under the act of 1904 and the capital of State bank and trust companies under the act of 1902, it would have to deduct the value of United States bonds owned, and hence was prejudicial by the failure to assess under that law, does not impress us either favorably or forcibly. Why should it have been entitled to this exemption? Certainly not on account of anything in the act of 1904, but because of a discrimination in the act of 1902, under which State banks were assessed; and when this was removed the technical right of national banks to exemption ceased to exist, and it was removed when the act discriminating in favor of State banks was repealed, and their shares were assessed under an act applying equally and alike to all banks.

"It was not the intention of the National Banking Act, nor has it been the purpose of the Supreme Court, as we understand its opinion, to allow national banks any advantage over other moneyed capital or to permit any discrimination in their favor as against other banking institutions. Keeping in mind this proposition and the undisputed fact that the shares of State bank and trust companies and national banks have been taxed under the same law and precisely alike, there is no merit in the contention of the appellee banks. Their effort to escape a just and fair share of taxation by attempting to so construe the law and the act of the Board of Valuation and Assessment as to make it appear that they, or their shareholders were or might have been discriminated against, when, in fact, they were not, or could not have been, will not be sanctioned." The opinion of the court was written by Judge Carroll, with a dissenting opinion by Chief Justice O'Keefe and Judges Lassing and Barker.

11oct-2m T. F. BRANNON.

A Bucket Shop Got It.

Confronted by a shortage of $19,000, caused by the defalcations of Assistant Cashier E. R. Baker, the officers and directors of the Union Bank and Trust Company, of Lexington, came to the rescue by personally assuming the full liability of the deficit, making that sum good to the bank on their personal account, thereby putting it back on the same solid basis it had always had, dollar for dollar, and thus, in spite of the irregularities indulged in, the safety of all deposits and the solvency of the institution is guaranteed.

Owing to this action the Assistant Cashier, E. R. Baker, who has made a confession of his wrong-doing, has been discharged from the service of the institution. W. T. Woolfolk, cashier of the bank, has resigned, and James L. Watkins, formerly vice President, has been put behind the cashiers desk by the directors. Mr. Baker went to Lexington from New Richmond, O., where he was in a bank, as he had been in Williamstown, Ky., where he bore a splendid reputation. He is quite a young man, about 25, with a wife and baby, and lives in South Broadway park.

DEATHS.

A telegram received here Friday from Atlanta, Ga., announced the sad death in that city Thursday night of Robert Osborn of typhoid fever. Mr. Osborn was 22 years of age and a young business man of much promise, being the Southern representative of the American Radiator Company. Mr. Osborn was a son of J. M. Osborn who resided in Paris for nearly two years and cousin of Dr. William Kenney and Mrs. Swiney Ray, of this city. Mr. Osborn had many friends in Paris, Lexington and Louisville who will deeply regret his untimely death. The body was shipped to Louisville where the interment took place. His mother before marriage was Miss Lutie Buckner, of Paris.

Anderson Chenault son of W. O. Chenault, and one of the most popular young men in Kentucky, died at Mr. Sterling Saturday morning. His young wife is critically ill in Lexington and may not survive. Mr. Chenault was twenty-six years old and a nephew of Col. Sam Morse, of New York, and was widely known in railroad circles.

Pensions For Confederates.

Richard P. Hobson, sailor-statesman, hero of the Merrimac and newly elected Representative in Congress from Alabama, proposes to introduce in the House at the next session a bill providing for Federal pensions of Confederate veterans. Mr. Hobson has outlined his plan in a letter to Governor Smith, of Georgia, in which he requests data as to Georgia's state pension system.

The letter states that the Congressman's plan is to ask the Federal Congress to appropriate sufficient funds to supplement the various Southern States' pension provisions to an extent that will assure the old Confederates an equitable benefit with that allowed the Union veterans.

COURT DECIDED IN HIS FAVOR

Cooper Fought to Retain Formula Which Has Made a Fortune.

L. T. Cooper, the man who believes that 90 per cent. of all ill health of this generation is caused by stomach trouble, is fast winning a national faith in his theory. His claim is now admitted by a surprising number of people throughout the country, and he is gaining new adherents every day.

While speaking of his success in a recent interview, Mr. Cooper said: "I believed ten years ago that any one who could produce a formula that would thoroughly regulate the stomach would have a fortune. When I got hold of this formula I knew within six months that I was right, and that my fortune was made. I called the medicine Cooper's New Discovery, although I did not get up the formula. I have owned it, however, for over three years. I have had one lawsuit over it, which I won in the courts. When it was settled The Cooper Medicine Company became the only firm in the world that can prepare the medicine. The preparation has sold like wildfire wherever introduced. As I have said before, it is successful simply because it puts the stomach in perfect shape, then nature does the rest. There are any number of complaints never before associated with stomach trouble that the medicine has alleviated in thousands of cases."

Among statements obtained recently from users of this medicine that is arousing such universal discussion is one from Mrs. Emma Stanley, living in Chicago, at 713 Washington Boulevard, who said: "Perhaps I had the most complicated case that Mr. Cooper had to deal with. I was troubled for years with my stomach. I consulted with doctors and took many patent medicine preparations without result. My stomach was in such a wretched shape that I could not enjoy a meal that I ate."

"I was very nervous, and could hardly sleep; I had a roaring in my ears and dancing spots before my eyes. I felt very bad and weak. Then there was a very sore spot at the pit of my stomach that nearly set me wild."

"I heard about the Cooper medicine and decided to try it. I used four bottles, and the improvement in my case has been really wonderful. My nerves have been quieted, and I am so much improved that I feel like a new woman."

"I cannot say too much for these wonderful remedies, for they have made me well."

We sell the Cooper medicines and consider them well worth a trial by any one afflicted with chronic stomach trouble and its attendant diseases. —Geo. S. Varden & Son.

Boiling It Down.

"I should like to manage this paper for about six months," said the new reporter of a country paper. "The present editor doesn't know his business."

"What's the matter?" he was asked. "Why, last night I was told off to report a fire in Broad street, and I wrote it up in grand style, making a half column article of it. I began it in this way:

"Suddenly on the still night air rang the shrill cry of fire, and at the same moment the little licking tongues of flame, whose light, playing along the roof's edge, caught the eye of the midnight watcher, leaped forth, no longer playful, but fierce and angry in their thirst and greed. Like glowing, snaky demons, the lurid links entwined the doomed building. In venomous hisses and spurts the flames shot into the overhanging darkness, while from every window and door poured forth a dense sulphurous smoke, the deadly suffocating breath of an imprisoned fiend."

"I went on in that style for over half a column," said the new reporter, "and this is what appeared in the paper this morning:

"A fire broke out in Broad street last night, but was quickly suppressed." Do you call that journalism?" —London Standard.

Love and Wedlock.

A man of middle age and a youth of romantic appearance sat alone in a smoking compartment of a nearly empty evening train. In the solitude the youth took a photograph from his pocket, looked at it and then said to his companion feverishly:

"Were you ever, sir, in love?"

The man of middle age started. He laughed.

"Was I ever in love?" he repeated as he relighted his pipe. "Was I ever in love? Well, I don't know it!"

"You don't know?" cried the youth. "Well, if you ever had been in love you'd know it. Why, when you're in love your life is a sweet dream, you have no taste for food, you think of nothing but the beauty of—"

"Were you ever married?" snapped the middle aged man.

"No, but—"

"Well, if you ever had been you'd know it. Why, when you're married your life is—"

But the youth, with a scowl, edged off to the far end of the carriage and got out at the next station, disgusted. —London Scraps.

His Awful Fate.

An American visitor in a German city bought a dachshund. The animal's length of body, short and peculiarly shaped legs and "highly intelligent dach face," he writes, would have made the dog conspicuous among the finest of his breed. "One day we missed him and were unable to find our pet. Next day his dead body, a little longer than in life, was shown to me by the man who came to tell us he had found the dog. He was very dead, but I did want to know how he met his untimely end and after inquiring learned that he had been run over by a 'spiegelscheibentransportwagen.' I could readily understand how that would have killed even an elephant and wanted to know why the infernal machine had been allowed to come into the city. It was a relief to be told that a spiegelscheibentransportwagen is a wagon on which mirror plates are transported. Poor little dach!"

The Sheikh and His House.

When the French came into contact with the Bedouin in Algeria, it was thought that a ready way of civilizing him would be to assist him to build himself a permanent habitation. A sheikh who was thus favored was full of gratitude to the French engineers who had built him a house.

"Since my house was finished," he said, "I have not lost a single sheep. I lock them up in my house every night, and next morning I find them all in safety."

"Then where do you sleep yourself?" asked an officer in amazement.

"Oh, for myself, a sheik can live only in his tent!" said the other, with dignity.

The Truth.

Gobsa Golde descended painfully from his ninety horsepower automobile.

"I wish to purchase," he said, an engagement ring."

"Yes, sir," said the eager clerk. "We have just imported a superb ring, sir—two ruby hearts surrounded—"

"No," said the aged millionaire in a cold, disillusioned voice; "no, that won't do. There is only one heart concerned in this affair. The girl is marrying me for my money." —New Orleans Times-Democrat.

"Packing Off of Widows."

Some curious customs in the way of pastimes prevail in Korea. Among the farming classes there is one known as the "packing off of widows." This means a raid on a certain village known to contain a young widow. A widower, accompanied by friends, enters the village, carries off the woman in question and marries her.

The Deadheads.

"What started the riot at the performance of 'Hamlet' last night?" "Ham held the skull and said, 'Alas, poor Yorick, you are not the only dead head in the house.'" —Pearson's Weekly.

Her Way.

"There's a young woman who makes little things count."

"How does she do it?"

"Teaches arithmetic in a primary school."

Do not seek glory; nothing so expensive as glory. —Sydney Smith.

Furs.

Furs were worn by Henry I., about 1125. Edward III., enacted that all persons who could not spend £100 a year should be prohibited this species of finery.

The Cow Killers.

The Gallas tribe in Africa is reported by a Belgian authority to regard it as a sacred duty to kill cows on every possible occasion, with a view of discovering a certain volume of sacred lore which a cow once swallowed.

Pins.

That most indispensable article, the pin, was invented in England in 1543.

Fayal Lace.

The beautiful lace known as fayal is made from the fibers in the leaves of the bitter aloe, grown in the Azores islands, a relative of the common century plant.

Lifeboats.

The first lifeboat was patented in the year 1785 by its inventor, Lionel Lukin of Dunmore, Essex, England.

Glue.

It is said that when whisky is used instead of water in making glue the mixture will remain unaltered for years, will remain perfectly liquid and is ready for use without heating.

Tight Shoes.

Did you ever suffer torment from a shoe tight in one spot? Here is a remedy for it: Apply sweet oil to the stockings where the rub comes. It is better than applying it to the boot, because it softens the inside of the boot where it is needed instead of the outside.

Siamese Ladies.

The wives of Siamese noblemen cut their hair so that it sticks straight up from their heads. The average length of it is about an inch and a half.

SPORTING NOTES.

McCormick of Princeton is one of the greatest fullbacks the game has ever known.

Nahma, by Peter the Great, is touted as another Sonoma Girl of the grand circuit next season.

Millard Sanders is confident that Ruth Dillon, 2:15 1/4, will some day be holder of the world's record for trotters.

Mount Pleasant of the Indians catches kinks on the run and makes the ends who try to tackle him look ridiculous.

It is reported that a new race track is to be built at Venice, a suburb of Los Angeles, Cal. Tim Sullivan and many eastern men are interested.

Considering different ethical attitudes, England has a licensed trainer of race horses who is also a regularly ordained minister of the gospel, and he has not found it necessary to resign his church living and dispose of his old tools either.

It was announced recently that another motor boat race to Bermuda for the Bennett Challenge cup will be started from Gravesend bay, New York, on June 6 next. It is open to all seaworthy motor craft not more than seventy feet over all that comply with certain conditions for safety.

THINGS THEATRICAL.

Marie Dressler has made a great hit in London.

Mr. Sutro's play called "John Glyde's Honor" will be presented in New York by James K. Hackett.

The late Richard Mansfield's production of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" is to be put on for a road tour.

Mrs. Bernard Beere is soon to make her re-entrance on the London stage after a long absence from the world of theatricals.

It is understood that Alla Nazimova is trying to get Elinor Glyn to dramatize her new novel, "Three Weeks," for her use in the spring.

Olga Nethersole is planning to play a season in the City of Mexico in April. She may then produce the little French play, "The Submarine," which has set Paris talking.

Justin H. McCarthy has written a comedy of French manners in the time of the regent Phillip of Orleans—about 1700—the heroine of which is a sort of reckless boyden.

THE ROYAL BOX.

After seeing a theatrical performance the kaiser often goes behind the scenes and chats with the players.

Queen Victoria of Spain, being an Englishwoman, is a lover of fresh air and keeps her windows open as much as possible. This is quite an innovation in Spain and the source of much comment in court circles.

Apart from his official revenues, the sultan of Turkey draws a handsome income from a street which he owns in Constantinople, from a sugar plantation in the West Indies and from a line of steamers which ply along his coasts.

King George of Greece is the poorest of all kings. His income is about $700 a day, which is nothing to one obliged to maintain the state and dignity of a king. He would be poorer still were it not for outside help. England, France and Russia each subscribe $20,000 a year toward his income.

ODD HAPPENINGS.

James R. Watson of Kansas City walked two miles on a broken leg.

Three daughters and one son of Samuel W. Carpenter of Allegheny, Pa., have eloped in a year.

A boy watching a football game in Philadelphia lost his balance and fell off a fence, sliding on a rough board. More than 130 splinters were taken from his body.

In Indian Territory Edward Frazier in jumping from a haymow was suspended for nine hours on account of his gold ring catching on a nail. The finger cannot be saved.

The suspenders of Joseph Wagner got caught in a belt in a mill in Pennsylvania and became so tightly wrapped around his neck that he was nearly choked to death before he was released.

MEDICAL MATTERS.

Of recent years only six deaths occur to each 100 amputations. This is owing to the improvements in antiseptic surgery.

A Berlin physician is endeavoring to have a course in cooking introduced into the medical curriculum. He says doctors are in the habit of prescribing a diet for their patients with regard only to its chemical ingredients, forgetting the importance of an appetizing method of preparation.

With a serum prepared after a method of his own, Professor Chantemesse has since 1901 treated a thousand cases of typhoid fever with a mortality of only 4.7 per cent, while during the same period in the other hospitals of Paris among 5,621 patients treated without the serum the mortality was 17 per cent.

Animal Oddities.

In South Africa baboons kill sheep. Horses, giraffes and ostriches have in proportion to their size larger eyes than any other living creature.

A horse in good condition can exist about twenty-five days without food so long as he has plenty of water to drink.

An elephant works from the age of twelve to eighty. He can haul fifteen tons, lift half a ton and carry three tons on his back.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

Bands of silk worked in colored silk embroidery in odd designs are used to brighten a dark dress.

A pretty dress trimming has round disks of velvet buttonholed on the material connected by three rows of narrow velvet ribbon.

Some of the new black braids have a touch of velvet. There is also a rich heavy braid for edging coats that is imported from Paris.

The vogue of purple is evident in every shade of pansy purple ribbon, in wrist bags of shaded green and purple, silk stockings, gloves and hats trimmed with pansies. —New York Post.

Among the dress trimmings and braids the filet note is quite pronounced. A filet net foundation is braided in soutache braid, while soutache appliques have designs in filet net.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

No man ever forgets to wind a new watch.

Soon or late about all the powder mills blow up. Are you watching your mill?

Don't be unhappy. When unhappy people die, they become ghosts and never get to heaven.

Before doing anything as a result of enthusiasm or excitement see if your enthusiasm or excitement won't wear off.

You see comedy when you see a young man trying to appear old. You see pathos when you see an old man trying to appear young.

There are hundreds of good men, but they all bow in humility before a really good woman. The patience and unselfishness of a really good woman cannot be equaled by a man. —Atchison Globe.

STATE LINES.

New York leads all other states in water power.

Kansas has the largest herd of Gallopway cattle in the world in Greenwood county, in which there are 400 head of registered animals.

In Rhode Island, as in Connecticut, a good many of the old farms are now in the hands of immigrants from Italy, and these new owners are making truck farming pay.

The state of Pennsylvania has taken steps to produce timber, and in the course of its work an order has been issued to rob the nests of the squirrels of part of their winter supply of nuts. The order is justified by the fact that the squirrels carry away and store virtually every nut that falls to the ground, a practice which prevents the new growth of trees.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

Keep a small new scrubbing brush to brush fringe on dollies when ironing.

Boiling water ought never to be poured over tea trays, japanned goods and the like, in that it cracks the varnish. Wash rather with warm water, a soft sponge and a very little soap.

A little pulverized chalk moistened with ammonia and applied with a brush will remove the mark caused by the dripping of a faucet in a marble basin. An old toothbrush is a good thing to use for this purpose.

To prevent lamps from smoking wash the wick thoroughly in warm water with a little soap dissolved in it. Then rinse in clean water and let dry. After it is dry soak the wick in strong vinegar for an hour, then dry.

WOMAN'S REALM.

Women writ servers are a success in many of our large cities.

Thousands of women in Scotland marched through the streets of Edinburgh recently to show their wish for a vote.

The parliament of Iceland is now in session, and nearly 12,000 women, a majority of all the adult women of Iceland, have sent in a petition for parliamentary suffrage. They already have the municipal vote.

The jail of Aigle, in the Rhone valley, Switzerland, has the probably unique distinction of being governed by a woman. For seventeen years Mme. Porchet has been governor of the jail, which has accommodation for twenty prisoners, whose sentences range from a month to two years.

GLEANINGS.

Gloves were first worn in England in the reign of Edward II.

India has 4,835,947 acres of irrigated land in the Punjab, an increase of 453,561 acres in one year. The crops are mainly wheat, sugar cane, grain and winter oil seeds.

A Boston correspondent of the New York Sun suggests that "one never sees a Japanese having a hair cut nor sees a Japanese who needs a hair cut" and asks if any one can explain this.

The work of forming a harbor at Durban, Port Natal, was started in 1882 and continued until 1906 without interruption, costing about $17,000,000, including developments and equipments.

Afghanistan.
Afghanistan may some day be one of the world's greatest mining districts. It is known to have mines of rubies, topaz, lapis lazuli, marble and other stones, iron, lead, copper, antimony and other metallic ores, sulphur and several of the earthy alkaline and metallic salts. Coal is also found and is believed to be extensive near the iron mines.

Wonderful Gates.
The designer of the gates of the baptistry of Florence, declared by Michael Angelo to be "the wonder of the world and fit to be the gates of paradise," was Ghiberti, who spent the whole of his life upon them.

Women of Italy.
Unlike the men, the women of Italy are most industrious. When their household duties are done they knit.

Shaving Brushes.
The finest shaving brushes are manufactured from badgers' hair, and "camel's hair" brushes are turned out in great quantities from squirrels' tails and from the hair that grows inside the ears of oxen.

Bamboo Guitars.
A popular instrument in Madagascar is the bamboo guitar, made from a bamboo cane six feet long. The cavity serves as the sounding board. Strings are cut out between the joints and are stretched by bridges.

Throwing Dice.
Throwing dice is said to have been originally a religious act. In the turn of the dice was supposed by the primitive peoples to be the answer of the gods to their prayers. There was no element of chance involved.

The common prayer book was first compiled by Bishops Cramer and Ridley in 1549.

Compliments After Death.
There is a German proverb which says, "Man darf nur sterben ein gelobt zu werden" (We need only die in order to get praised). This, we cannot help but admit, is fairly true in a general sense, and if we required any proof or confirmation the epitaphs in cemeteries, churchyards and churches would readily furnish it. Indeed if we had no other testimony to go by than these pious inscriptions we might almost fancy that men and women had arrived at such a state of perfection that they were little less than angels. Death, like time, is a great healer of wounds, a great soother of passions, a great calmer of turbulent thoughts, a slayer of enmity. He is the peace-maker par excellence, having caused the saying to gain general currency that we should say nothing of the dead but what is good. Among the laws of the "Twelve Tables," compiled by the Decemviri, there was one which, in fact, forbade to speak injuriously of the dead. It is in exchange for this doubtless that we are always doubly anxious and ready to vilify the living. —Westminster Gazette.

A Spurgeon Ruse.
Spurgeon, the famous English divine, once passed a stonemason who, after each stroke of his hammer, cursed and swore. Mr. Spurgeon laid his hand on his shoulder and, looking kindly at him, said: "You are an adept at swearing. Can you also pray?" With another oath he replied, "Not very likely." Holding up 5 shillings, Mr. Spurgeon said if he would promise never to pray he would give him that. "That is easily earned," said the man, with a fresh oath, and put it in his pocket. When Spurgeon left the man began to feel a little queer. When he went home his wife asked him what ailed him, and he told her. "It is Judas' money," said the man, and on a sudden impulse he threw it into the fire. The wife found it and took it out and discovered who had given it to him. The man took it back to Spurgeon, who conversed long with him, warning him, and at length was the means of saving him. He became an attached member of his flock.

'Twas In Tater Time.
The late Senator Platt of Connecticut enjoyed funny stories and could tell a good many himself. Notwithstanding his long public life, he always remembered a yarn that he carried from his school days.

One year when the district schools opened in his town one of the teachers in making a record of the ages of her pupils, as required by law, found that one little girl, who came from a family not noted for being especially bright, was unable to say when her birthday came.

So in order to complete her records the teacher walked two miles to see the girl's mother one afternoon after school. Asked if she could remember just when her daughter was born, the woman thought for some little time and then, with a sort of puzzled look, said:

"Well, the gal was born in tater time, that's sure, but I can't remember whether they was a-plantin' on 'em or a-diggin' on 'em." —Boston Herald.

Retaliation.
A man who was a guest at one of the summer resorts in West Virginia tells of a wedding ceremony he witnessed in the town near by. The minister was young and easily embarrassed. It was the first wedding he had ever undertaken. The prospective bride and groom were both younger and still more easily embarrassed than he.

When the minister had finished the service and muttered a few kindly but halting words to the young couple he had just united the bride looked at him, blushing, but confident.

"Thank yer," she said clearly. "It's shore kind o' yer to congratulate us, an' as long as you haven't ever been married yet maybe we'll have a chance some day to retaliate." —Harper's Weekly.

Legal Absurdities.
Some absurd clauses have found their way into certain acts of the British parliament. One statute enacted punishment of fourteen years' transportation for a certain offense, "and upon conviction one half thereof should go to the king and the other half to the informer." Then there is an act of parliament for the rebuilding of Chelmsford prison which stipulated in one clause that the prisoners should be confined in the old prison until the new one was built and in another—an amending-clause that the new prison should be constructed out of the material of the old one.

He Didn't Put It Off.
"Gracious!" exclaimed Mr. Statelate. "It's nearly midnight. I should be going pretty soon, I suppose." "Yes," replied Miss Patience Gonne, "you know the old saying, 'Never put off till tomorrow what you can do today.'" —Philadelphia Press.

Stationary Waltzing.
"You let him hug you in the conservatory." "I did not. I made him remove his arm every time the music in the ball-room stopped." —Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Comparison.
Mrs. Johnston (over the tub)—Doan Ah mek you a good livin', Henry Clay Johnston? Mr. Johnston—Tol'ble, chile—tol'ble. But you sh'd have seen de way mah mothah supported mah fathah! —Puck.

Nothing except it be a battle lost can be half so melancholy as a battle won. —Wellington.

INDIGESTION'S RECORD

"The best remedy I can prescribe for your indigestion, madam, is Green's August Flower. I know of several other physicians who prescribe it regularly."

Indigestion is making an awful record as a cause of sudden deaths. It is beating heart-failure in its ghastly harvest. You read in the papers daily of apparently healthy and even robust men being suddenly attacked with acute indigestion after enjoying a hearty meal, and of their dying in many cases before a physician could be called in.

This should be a warning to you who suffer with regular or periodical attacks of indigestion. If these unfortunate victims of acute indigestion had taken a small dose of Green's August Flower before or after their meals they would not have fallen a prey to such sudden seizures. August Flower prevents indigestion by creating good digestion. It also regulates the liver, purifies the blood and tones up the entire system in a natural way. Two sizes, 25c and 75c. All druggists.

THEATRICAL.

—The raising of the curtain at the Paris Grand tomorrow night will reveal the door yard of Mr. Maverick Brander's house in Texas. Mr. Brander is a wealthy cattle owner and his family consist of a wife and daughter. The ladies tire of their rustic home and conceive a desire to shine in society. They have tried to induce the old gentleman to run for Congress but he persistently refuses. At the time the play opens Mr. B. is a way from home and the ladies arrange to have him elected before his return.

The populace meet him and announce the fact and insist on his accepting. The scene then shifts to the Arlington Hotel, Washington, and the trials the Texan is put to in his endeavor to keep pace with the Washington set draw out some of the best comedy work that the people of this city may expect to witness this season.

The wife and daughter appear in gorgeous raiment cut after the best Texas pattern, which are a source of mortification to the gallant captain who is in love with Miss Bossy, the daughter, and who has promised to introduce them into the Washington society. A quarrel takes place in consequence between the lovers which is not mended until the last act, of course. The Congressman meantime gets into innumerable scrapes through his ignorance of the ways of politicians and tricksters. He is followed to Washington by a colored statesman from his district who is desirous of representing the government in Dahomey and who meets with the general fate of office seekers who look for a fat berth right away. An investigating committee from Texas arrives on the scene and create quite an uproar before they depart, satisfied. This is the skeleton of "A Texas Steer," but there are twenty-five characters in it that contribute to one of the best farce-comedies ever written.

The cast includes such well known people as Frank M. Readick, who has been with Hoyt's attractions for many seasons; Nina Wilber, the charming actress, as the Texas maiden. The full list of the cast is so lengthy that mention of all is impossible, but the play is strongly supported on all sides and lack nothing.

—Some good ones that are coming to the Paris Grand are among the following list of attractions: "Cupid at V s ar," "In Old Kentucky," "Holy City," "Quincy Adams Sawyer," "Al. G. Fields," "Howe's Pictures," "Checkers," "The Red Mill," "Ma's New Husband," "The Lunatic and Lady," "Sis Hopkins," "On the Bridge at Midnight," "Peggy from Paris," "Mayor of Laughland," "Cole and Johnson," "Black Patti," "Buster Brown," "The Show Girl," "Nip and Tuck," "Donnelly and Hatfield," "The Train Rallers," "Mason and Mason," "Rudolph and Adolph," and others.

Mad Cat Bites Child.

The little son of J. Shipp, who lives at Peak station, a few miles from Georgetown was bitten by a mad cat Saturday. The cat is a pet in the family, and suddenly went mad, biting the little fellow, who was immediately taken to Georgetown and a mad-stone administered. It adhered to the wound. This mad-stone was the property of R. S. Quinn, and has descended through a century to his grandchildren.

MATRIMONIAL.

—In Asheville, N. C., on Friday, Nov. 22, Miss Alma Summers, of this city, was united in marriage to Mr. Robert Pyles, of that city. Miss Summers went to Asheville last spring for the benefit of her health, which was greatly improved by her stay there. The couple will arrive on Thanksgiving and will spend a few days with the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Summers, after which they will return to Asheville to reside.

—The engagement of Mr. Charles Slater Collins, of Nicholas county, and Miss Emma Wright, of Massillon, O., has been announced and the wedding will take place at the home of the bride on December 18.

Miss Wright is the daughter of Mr. Edward Wright, formerly of this city, and who but recently moved to Massillon to make his future home.

—The residence of the Rev. J. W. Prather, of Richmond, Ky., was, Friday, the scene of a tripple wedding, in which six popular young people of the Kirsaville locality were united in marriage.

They were: Clay Broadus and Miss Cora Prather, Andrew Ross and Miss Mary McClanahan, and Nathan Turner and Miss Molle Howe.

—Dr. Humphrey J. Bennett and Mrs. Mamie Chenault prominent Madison county couple, were married at the home of the Rev. Addison J. Smith, at Richmond, at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Dr. Bennett, who is about 70 years old, is a well to do farmer of that county, while his bride is 40, and is the widow of Thomas Chenault, deceased.

Louisville Making Strong Fight.

Members of the Democratic National Committee accepted Louisville's invitation to come and see what the city has to offer in the way of inducement to get the next national convention. The Louisville delegation presented the Louisville claims before an informal meeting of the committee at Frenel Lick Springs Ind. A formal decision will be made in December, when the committee will meet in Washington. Denver offered $100,000 in gold.

Cabbage Good for Cows.

E. B. Hedges, representing Cincinnati parties, sold to M. B. Lovell, the dairyman, a carload of 30,000 pounds of domestic cabbage. Mr. Lovell will feed the cabbage to his milk cows, as by recent investigations and experiments of agricultural colleges cabbage has proven to be one of the greatest milk producers of any vegetable.

Mr. Hedges also sold Ferguson, Webber & Whaley a mixed carload of corn and oats and a car of No. 2 mixed corn to James E. Clay.

An Invitation.

Call at the Paris Book Store and see the beautiful Holiday gifts.

Money in the Farm.

Mr. J. W. Pridemore, one of Bourbon's thrifty farmers, who resides on the Stoner farm, on Jackstown pike, proves conclusively that there is money in farming. He rented the 343 acres at rental of $1,918. So far he has sold $1,732 worth of corn, and has the same quantity left, one-half of which he will put in the bin. He sold lambs to the amount of $330; hogs $326; besides he raised sixteen acres of tobacco which will average 1,500 pounds per acre, and he has hay, oats and potatoes for all necessary purposes. Mrs. Pridemore from the produce of two Jersey cows, and for chickens, eggs and turkeys will realize more than $300. Mr. Pridemore did not pool his tobacco, but says he will hold and back up the Society of Equity till an established market prevails, and that farming can very successfully be prosecuted without the raising of a pound of tobacco.

The religion you can live by will do to die by.

Recipe Mixed Often.

Some remarkable stories are being told about town and among the country people coming in of this simple home-made mixture curing Rheumatism and Kidney trouble. Here is the recipe and directions for taking: Mix by shaking well in a bottle one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Take as a dose one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

No change need be made in your usual diet, but drink plenty of good water.

This mixture, writes one authority in a leading Philadelphia newspaper, has a peculiar tonic effect upon the kidneys; cleansing the clogged-up pores of the eliminative tissues, forcing the kidneys to sift and strain from the blood the uric acid and other poisonous waste matter, overcoming Rheumatism, Bladder and Urinary troubles in a short while.

A New York druggist who has had hundreds of calls for these ingredients since the first announcement in the newspapers last October stated that the people who once try it "swear by it" especially those who have Urinary and Kidney trouble and suffer with rheumatism.

The druggists in this neighborhood say they can supply the ingredients, which are easily mixed at home. There is said to be no better blood-cleansing agent or system tonic known, and certainly none more harmless or simple to use.

Society Folks Little Short.

Can it be that New York society folks are also short of ready cash. At the sale of the horse show boxes this year all records for low prices have been smashed. The first choice went for $350, as against $500 in a former year, and the total sales fell below $10,000. The Vanderbilts, Gerrys, Oelroches, Harrimans, Belmonts and others who usually attend the sale were absent. We fear it is going to be a hard winter among the wealthy poor in New York.

A Narrow Escape.

G. W. Cloyd, a merchant, of Plunk, Mo., had a narrow escape four years ago, when he ran a jimson bur into his thumb. He says: "The doctor wanted to amputate it but I would not consent. I bought a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve and that cured the dangerous wound." 25c at Oberdorfer's the druggist.

Facts Worth Knowing.

The Society of Soul Winners was organized nine years ago to give the Gospel to four millions of our countrymen in the mountain. It began with one preacher, and three hundred and sixty dollars. This year it had one hundred and three preachers and teachers in the destitute regions of Kentucky, Tennessee, North Carolina and Virginia who were supported without even asking a collection from any church. Free will offerings of over twenty-thousand dollars were received from all over the world for this work. The Society has built more than a score of churches and schools and colleges in regions where there were none. Last year these Soul Winners held 4,500 public services, and reported 1,193 conversions, taught over 7,000 children and distributed over 30,000 religious papers.

One noble woman gave six thousand dollars to found an Orphan Asylum for the scores of homeless mountain children. The Society publishes an excellent monthly journal at 25 cents per year. It sent nearly one hundred boxes and barrels of clothing to the poor in the mountains last year. This work is for the salvation of our long neglected highland neighbors, the Scotch-Irish and Anglo-Saxon people descendants of Revolutionary sires. They are the most American of all Americans. There is no better blood on the continent. Tens of thousands of them have neither churches nor schools. If you want a part in this great work and its glorious reward, send your help to Maj. Robt. S. Bullock, Cashier Fayette National Bank, Treasurer; or Dr. Edward O. Guerrant, President, Wilmore, Ky.

Come to think of it now, can you blame Oklahoma for preferring to cast her lot with Texas rather than with Pennsylvania?

Wonderful Eczema Cure.

"Our little boy had eczema for five years," writes N. A. Adams, Henrietta, Pa. Two of our home doctors said the case was hopeless, his lungs being effected. We then employed other doctors, but no benefit resulted. By chance we read about Electric Bitters; bought a bottle and soon noticed improvement. We continued this medicine until several bottles were used, when our boy was completely cured." Best of all blood medicines and body building health tonics. Guaranteed at Oberdorfer's drug store 50c.

A Reliable Mince-Meat Receipt.

Mince-meat needs time for ripening, and is best when made weeks before it is to be used. Select about five pounds of lean beef from neck, rump, or round. Cover with boiling water, add one teaspoonful of salt and simmer gently until very tender. Free from fat and bone, but through the food-chopper, then weigh. For three full pounds add 2 pounds of beef suet and six pounds of tart apples chopped fine, one quart of the cold beef liquor, six pounds of granulated sugar, four pounds of seed raisins, three pounds of cleaned currants, a half pound of chopped citron, two ounces of chopped candied lemon-peel, three pints of ed cider, one pint of molasses, two tablespoonfuls of salt, one cupful of cinnamon, two-thirds of a cupful of ground cloves, one teaspoonful of black pepper, and three pints of currant jelly. Put over the fire in a granite kettle, heat quickly and boil for twenty minutes, adding as much of the sirup from pickled peaches or any preferred preserves as many seem desirable. Take from the fire, can, and seal immediately.—From the Cooking Circle in The Circle for December.

A Costly Tree.

A New York society woman wanted an ancestral tree and employed a man to find one. He labored with such zeal that he traced her ancestry back over 1,000 years and found she was a descendant of Alfred the Great. With a large, luxuriant tree like this she was gladly welcomed by the members of the "Order of the Crown," which is so exclusive nobody can become a member who can not show descent from a natural son or daughter of a royal strumpet, or otherwise. But the noble order's genealogist investigated and the bankers' wife and kinswoman of Alfred the Great was informed that she could not join the order. The man who made her tree sued, she refused to pay because his tree bore no fruit, but the jury awarded him $500. This is not a high price for a family tree—at the present price of lumber.
